Eden and After is a new collection of photographs from one of the most influential photographers working today. For over 30 years, Nan Goldin has created intimate and compelling photographs that tell personal stories of relationships, friendships, and identity while chronicling different eras and exposing the passage of time. Here, Goldin presents photographs of children that capture the energy, emotion, and mystery of childhood. This beautifully produced book features 300 color illustrations and an introduction from Guido Costa, an art dealer and close friend of the artist.

A Reference Grammar of French Echo Point Books & Media, LLC

Irina Ionesco is the "Grande Dame" of French erotic photography. These photographs of her young daughter Eva Ionesco have been widely acclaimed since the 1970's. Voted "Woman of the Year" by Time Life Photography 1977, with over 12 books and countless international exhibitions, Ionesco's style is unique. The noted American photography critic A. D. Coleman writes in the Preface "These images insistently demand a singular response....Here we have Eva nude, partially clothed, and fully dressed, enacting...the self-decoration, postures, and gestures of feminine flirtation and erotic enticement." With all Ionesco's previous monographs out of print, EVA is the largest and definitive collection of over 130 Eva photographs and is destined to become a classic. Never before in the history of photography has an artist of this magnitude photographed her child to such stunning effect. Disclaiming controversy, Ionesco explains "The liberty I took in baring her was innocent". Weaving threads of baroque orientalism, gothic eroticism and surrealist fantasy, these mysterious photographs bear witness to a "dark love" as Graham Ovenden describes in the Foreword. This high quality publication by Alice Press is printing simultaneously with a Japanese edition and a lavishly bound collector's Limited Edition presented in a pink satin clamshell box.

A Long and Happy Life Prestel Pub

Taken against the Arcadian backdrop of her woodland summer home in Virginia, Sally Mann's extraordinary, intimate photographs of her children : Emmett, Jessie, and Virginia reveal truths that embody the individuality of her immediate family and ultimately take on a universal quality. Mann states that her work is "about everybody's memories, as well as their fears," a theme echoed by Reynolds Price in his eloquent, poignantly reflective essay accompanying the photographs in Immediate Family. With sublime dignity, acute wit, and feral grace, Mann's pictures explore the eternal struggle between the child's simultaneous dependence and quest for autonomy, the holding on, and the breaking away. This is the stuff of which Greek dramas are made : impatience, terror, self-discovery, self-doubt, pain, vulnerability, role-playing, and a sense of immortality, all of which converge in Sally Mann's astonishing photographs. A traveling exhibition of Immediate Family, organized by Aperture, opened at the Institute of Contemporary Art in Philadelphia in the fall of 1992. All of the photographs in Immediate Family were taken with an 8-by-10-inch view camera.

The Straw King- Volume 1 - The Pharaoh's Daughter Burns & Oates

Egypt, 7th century BCE. Neith and Sennedjem are two of many royal children too far down the inheritance ladder to matter. Facing limited prospects—she's likely to wind up in her own father's bed, and he won't even wind up an advisor—they set out instead to see the world. But the ancient world is full of dangers, and soon enough, the royal pair find themselves sold off to the court of Babylon by slave traders. As a lady-in-waiting, Neith becomes entangled in another royal family's power struggles, while her brother falls victim to a bizarre religious ritual: the Straw King...

Create Your Own World-Class Lace A thorough introduction to a centuries-old tradition, Russian Lace Patterns presents 66 templates taught by two renowned masters of their craft, Bridget Cook and Anna Korableva. Starting in the 12th century this exquisite lace adorned the robes of the tsar and religious garments, often using threads made of silver and gold. Over the centuries the metallic threads gave way to linen and colored silk. Russian lace gradually migrated from the realm of the elite to that of the common folk. Whether for display in a museum or active use in everyday activities, lace making is considered one of the most important types of Russian decorative art; as durable as it is decorative, it can be found on linens, festive attire, and work garments. Antique motifs included scenes of birds perched in flowering bushes, peacocks, and other highly elaborate images. Russian lace-making techniques are distinctly different from those used in neighboring Western Europe. Ribbon-tape is an integral part, and fewer bobbins are employed, allowing the design to be readily seen and understood as the piece evolves. This collaboration between two preeminent lace makers, Russian Anna Korableva and Briton Bridget Cook, clearly reveals the techniques step by step. Photos are provided for each finished piece, along with diagrams for the pricking patterns and placement of the Russian ribbon tape. Novice as well as experienced bobbin lace makers will find this collection indispensable. Instructions are provided in English, Dutch, French, and German, with over 150 illustrations and diagrams. Be sure to complete your library of lace patterns and methods with Bridget Cook's other lace making titles published by Echo Point Publishing: Russian Lace Making (ISBN 1648370284 hardcover, 1648370292 paperback) and The Building on his first monograph, Jock Sturges presents us with a new body of work that strikes the same chords of beauty and evolution that we find in his earlier images, but with a more intense dramatic and metaphoric intention. His new work often has an almost theatrical effect on the viewer -- seeming to emanate directly from the lives of the artist's models. The settings, the subjects, the sumptuous lighting will all be familiar to longtime admirers of Sturges' ongoing body of work. As his experience as a photographer has deepened and his relationships with his growing subjects spans decades of collaboration, both subjects and photographer have found more to say to each other. The new photographs include diptychs of clothed/nude models, pictures of true mutual trust, as well as never-before seen color photographs! This large format book takes direct aim at Jock Sturges' long-standing vision as his large format, 8x10 view-camera always demanded the large exhibition prints that were to follow. Thanks to the brilliant combination of computer-driven advances in modern printing techniques and the old-world attention to detail and craftsmanship, this book sets a new standard for the reproduction of artworks.

Fanny is an extended portrait of a young girl's transition from child to woman. Made over a period of twenty-three years, the images are at once beautiful in their detail of light and identity, as well as frankly anthropological in their descriptive effect. A naturalist since birth, Fanny's comfort with nudity and her natural self has allowed Sturges to draw an engaging portrait of the evolution of a human being with few social distractions. His access to the girl's and woman's character is direct and fascinating. Long known for his extended portraits of children and adolescents, this book is strong evidence of Sturges's permanent commitment to the people in his work.

Tantôt furies, tantôt sorcières, les mères monstreuuses continuent-elles à être considérées comme des êtres contre nature ou la description de ces femmes, de leurs actes et motivations présumées, a-t-elle changé au cours les siècles ? De tout temps, la monstruosité des mères a suscité l'intérêt de la société. Déclenchant les débats éthiques, des déchaînements médiatiques, elle est aussi à l'origine d'un nombre impressionnant d'œuvres artistiques complexes. L'infanticide maternel est un acte incompréhensible qui a toujours fasciné et répugné à la fois... À partir de 1980, un autre regard semble s'être posé sur ce phénomène, les auteures féminines tentant de réécrire l'histoire de Médée en la disculpant. Cette étude de genre examine l'évolution de l'image de la mère monstrueuse à la lumière des changements actuels des représentations féminines et du traitement de faits d'actualité. EXTRAIT En effet, la perspective de l'infanticide permet de questionner plus largement, au fil des époques, les rapports entre femme et criminalité, femme et maternité. Les femmes ont de tout temps été minorisées par la machine judiciaire. L'imaginaire autour de la mère monstrueuse (la tueuse d'enfants, la meurtrière, la faiseuse d'ange ou encore la nourrice qui sombre dans la folie comme Jeanne Weber surnommée en 1906 « l'Ogresse de la Goutte d'Or ») contraste fort avec l'idée d'une femme qui serait par nature et par instinct éloignée de toute forme de violence, car elle est justement celle qui est censée donner la vie. Cette conduite criminelle spécifique liée à la nature et au rôle féminin, évoque aussi la peur d'une féminité dérégulée qui représenterait une menace pour la sphère privée. L'attention médiatique semble nous suggérer que de plus en plus de femmes tuent leurs enfants. Cet engouement public ne se délecte pas seulement d'un acte très souvent désespéré mais essaie de consolider à travers son évocation massive un équilibre des forces politiquement genré. Ces « affaires polarisées », comme les appelle le journaliste belge Marc Metdepenningen, ne s'inscrivent pas simplement dans la mode actuelle des reality shows, mais ont été utilisées depuis le début de la presse écrite en tant que moyen pour « divertir » et influencer l'opinion du peuple. Dans son article repris dans la première partie de ce volume, Amélie Richeux analyse minutieusement la présentation des mères « contre-nature » dans les causes célèbres de la France du XIXe siècle. En réécrivant des cas judiciaires à l'attention du grand public, l'avocat Méjan influence subtilement ses lecteurs en soulignant l'horreur des crimes et la monstruosité des accusées. Assurément politique dans son commentaire des faits, il plaide pour la réinstauration des valeurs de l'Ancien Régime et notamment son système des classes. Un autre exemple de récit orienté est le recueil de Fournier qui tente dans une perspective plus progressiste d'expliquer les faits d'une façon plus scientifique. Durant la Belle Epoque, le journal Gil Blas est la manifestation de cette fabrication de discours à valeur morale et politique ciblant le grand public. Matthew Sandefer démontre parfaitement, à travers des textes littéraires de Balzac et de Maupassant, le changement de l'image de la mère meurtrière, qui symbolise à la fois une société en crise et la nécessité d'un changement de la condition féminine. Les mères indignes, ou « marâtres naturelles » pour utiliser une expression d'Elisabeth Badinter, constituent un véritable nœud traumatique dans la littérature francophone présentée dans la deuxième partie de cet ouvrage. La violence et le silence dans la relation mère-fille, la loi du pouvoir et la ténacité avec laquelle la mère insiste sur la transmission des lois patriarcales sont des thèmes récurrents chez différentes auteures.

"It is not about provocation, reaction or even invocation, it is about transformation: mentally and physically."—Marina Abramovic, artist "Art is subjective, and if one sees something in an image, that projection is a reflection of the spectator, who sees what he or she wants to see, whose critique is relevant to him or herself, exposing his or her own perversions."—Irina Lonesco, artist Until the late twentieth century, women's creative skills were relegated to craft and decorative arts, and valued only for utilitarian purposes in service to others and the manufacturing of products to benefit society. After enduring the great injustice of being denied the freedom that self-expression brings through art for the joy of the human spirit, Women of the Underground: Art celebrates those female cultural innovators who are creating new artwork that pushes boundaries, dares to question, and redefines the genres of mixed media; theater; film; photography; and visual, conceptual, and performance art. In this groundbreaking anthology that will inspire artists and everyone interested in alternatives to mainstream culture, as well as serve as a reference book for art historians, twenty-six female artists describe their ideas, beginnings, influences, and creative techniques. Contains interviews with Lady Pink, Marina Abramovic, Orlan, Aleksandra Mir, Penny Arcade, Johanna Went, the Guerrilla Girls, and many others. Editor Zora von Burden was born and raised in San Francisco, California. A frequent contributor to The San Francisco Herald, von Burden also wrote the screenplay for Geoff Corder's underground cult classic film, Hotel Hopscotch.

The analysis of UNESCO's audio-visual archives for their digitization has brought to light a forgotten album of 38 contact sheets and accompanying texts by Magnum photographer, David "Chim" Seymour - a reportage made in 1950 for UNESCO on the fight against illiteracy in Italy's southern region of Calabria. A number of his photographs appeared in the March 1952 issue of UNESCO Courier in an article written by Carlo Levi, who had gained worldwide fame with his novel Christ Stopped at Eboli (1945). L'analyse des archives audio-visuelles de l'UNESCO en vue de leur numérisation a permis de découvrir un album oublié comprenant 38 planches-contact et des textes d'accompagnement du photographe de Magnum David « Chim » Seymour - un reportage réalisé en 1950 pour l'UNESCO sur la bataille contre l'analphabétisme en Calabre, une région du sud de l'Italie. Un certain nombre de ses photographies ont été publiées dans le numéro de mars 1952 du Courier de l'UNESCO avec un article de Carlo Levi, dont le roman Le Christ s'est arrêté à Eboli (1945) lui avait valu une renommée internationale
